Emergence
This is Loop

A huge, mirrored structure, completely reflective to provide audiences with a new perspective of a once-familiar space. Intended to act as a place of contemplation amongst the chaos of the outside world.

Evanescent
Atelier Sisu

Immerse yourself in the giant inflatable bubbles which have appeared in College Green. Evanescence by Australian artists Atelier Sisu encourages audiences to explore our delicate world with a sense of play and wonder.

Pulse
This is Loop

Pulse is a 40-metre long immersive, audio-visual installation made up of more than 14,000 individual LEDs. Step inside enormous rings of light and experience a new perspective on Bristol.

Swing Song
Tired Industries & Bristol Light Festival

Bristol Light Festival's very own Swing Song is back! A set of six interactive swings which light up and play music as you swing back and forth. Swing high for a crescendo or gently for more ambient vibes.

The Nectary
Alison Smith & Dr Chris Hassall

Be like the bees as you move between the giant glowing flowers. The Nectary highlights how listening to nature can increase our understanding of the delicate ecosystems that are so crucial for our future.

The Unfolding
SLX & Bristol Light Festival

Enjoy a gentle, meditative experience as The Unfolding shines new light on the ruins of Temple Church. Designed by Alex Keighley and set to music from Hannah Peel and Bristol-based Paraorchestra's No. 1 Classical Album.

WildLight
BBC Studios & Bristol Light Festival

Take a walk on the wild side as animals escape our TV screens into the streets around us. In this new collaboration with Bristol Light Festival, we celebrate BBC's Natural History Unit who have been based in Bristol since 1957.
